16 ancient horses unearthed in Greece

THREE multi-millionaire founder of easyJet, Stelios Haji-Ioannou, is set to launch a personal campaign for the reuniting of the Parthenon marbles.

The controversial marble sculptures, which have been at the centre of a diplomatic dispute between Britain and Greece for decades, are split between the British Museum in London and the New Acropolis Museum in Athens. However, the Greek Cypriot entrepreneur will take out a full-page ad in a number of British newspapers this week to argue the case for keeping the artworks in a single collection.

An open letter reads: “I think the time has come for the curators of the two museums to come to a constructive dialogue. “Away from the politics and name-calling, I feel there is now a real sense of urgency to save these masterpieces reunited.”

As part of his campaign, Haji-Ioannou also plans to arrange for a ship to sail around Greece later in the year with the words: “Return the Parthenon Marbles.”

The marbles adorned the interior of the Ancient Greek Parthenon in Athens, but a significant number were taken by Sir-born Thomas Bruce, the 7th Earl of Elgin, in 1801. Although the removal was controversial even at the time, and was attacked by many of his contemporaries in Britain, the marbles were purchased in 1816 by the British Museum, where they remain to this day.

A new museum to house the remaining marbles has been built in Athens, just 280m from the Parthenon, and many feel that the Parthenon marbles should now be returned to Greece.

The excavations have also unearthed bronze wedges and bronze fittings, including a horse shield. The chariot had a frieze relief in bronze, showing three of Hercules’ labours: the Cerberus dog, the wild boar of Erymanthian, and the Stymphalian birds.

In 2007, archaeologists had found a chariot wheel placed under one of the horses’ skeletons to keep them in place for the second century AD. And was considered a find of considerable importance. A container was found holding four copper coins dating to the 6th century BC.

A grave containing 16 horses and a two-wheeled chariot dating back to Roman times has been unearthed by archaeologists in the north-east corner of Greece.

The remains of two people were also found in the grave near Lithothorhini, in the Kavala region. Greece’s Culture Ministry said 16 of the horse skeletons were complete and the animals appeared to have been arranged in pairs.

News from Cyprus and Greece in brief

Government fails to act on sex trafficking

Trafficking in women for sexual exploitation in Cyprus has taken on dangerous dimensions, the Mediterranean Institute of Management (MIGS) said last Thursday.

MIGS was commenting on the latest US Trafficking in Persons (TIP) report, which placed Cyprus on what is called the Tier 2 Watch List for the third consecutive year. It is the only EU country in that category. “The real-ity is that trafficking in sexual exploitation in Cyprus has taken dangerous dimensions, a fact that the government itself is tolerating and even promoting by continuing to fuel demand for sexual services with the issuing of prostitution visas, which are for ‘artists’ as well as licences for the operation of high risk establishments such as cabarets,” MIGS said. It was also alarmed and concerned over statements made by officials that the view with that report is that there may be hidden victims.

Migrants in Greece

More than one million migrant birds were illegally trapped and killed over the past year to feed an illicit Cypriot taste for such delicacies, according to a field survey by BirdLife Cypriot carried out between March 2007 and February 2008, an estimated 1.1 million birds were indiscrimi-nately killed with the use of mist nets and lassos.

These methods are used to catch black caps and song thrushes, much sought after delicacies on Cyprus that fetch 5-6 bird at restaurants, mak- ing the illegal trade a lucrative one. Ambipoulina are also offered as prizes at roadside Karantzas and tombola games, which is a firm telltale sign that the situation is worsening. “Cyprus is probably the worst in Europe for killing migratory birds. They are in the premier league for offenders,” BirdLife director Martin Hal- kir told the Cypriot Weekly. “If the political will to clamp down on the restaurants, then Cyprus will return to the bad old days of the 1990s when up to 1.1 million birds were killed,” he added.

Greek politicians

Prime Minister Costas Karamanlis last Thursday vowed to get to the bottom of how the roof of Nicosia Municipal Theatre collapsed, as the ex-ist of the tragedy was avoided on Wednesday-night day began to sink in last trick.

“IT is a huge relief no one was hurt. Although the destruction is huge, we are greatly relieved we are not causing victims. We are lucky noth-ing was on that night,” a distraught Mavrou told reporters.

From the outside, the building appears unharmed. “Miraculously, the theatre was closed on Wednesday night, and no one was hurt in the accident, which crushed almost the entire seating area. Twenty-four hours later, the theatre was booked to host hundreds of schoolchildren for an end-of-year performance,” Tourism Ministry inspectors spent the whole Thursday inspecting the scene and recording the extent of the damage. Police cordoned off the theatre with yellow tape while CID investiga-tors took statements from the architect and civil engineer involved in the building’s recent re-furbishment.

Consumer groups

The Neo-classical Municipal Theatre was de-constructed, as the extent of the tragedy that was avoided on Wednesday night began to sink in last trick. “It is a huge relief no one was hurt. Although the destruction is huge, we are greatly relieved we are not causing victims. We are lucky nothing was on that night,” a distraught Mavrou told reporters.

Kataklysmos Celebrations

The Kataklysmos Festival was last weekend celebrated once again. Although originally celebrated in the occupied town of Famagusta, the tradi-tions are well kept up today. According to well-known singers, local groups and choirs, other cultural performances and sea-side fairs took place through-out Cyprus.

Brothers wanted in Cyprus

Brothers wanted in Cyprus arrested in Mykonos

The Akthar brothers will also face charges from the Greek au-thorities to add to the charges ex-pected to be brought against them by the Cypriot police, it emerged on Tuesday.

The Greek authorities are be-lieved to be charging the two brothers who had been on the run since August last year for using false documents to enter the country. Elio and Giorgos Akthar, 32 and 28, had managed to obtain Lithuan-ian passports while in Turkey, where they had escaped to after fleeing from the occupied areas last sum-mer.

The Cypriot police had been on the hunt for the two brothers after they seriously injured two police officers after viciously abusing them with swords, following a search of their Limassol home for drugs and weapons.

The duo, considered to be among Cyprus’ most wanted criminals, were arrested in Greek island of Mykonos on Sunday night after being identified by two Cypriot police officers who were on holiday on the popular tourist spot with their families.

They are wanted by police in Cyprus on various charges, including those of causing grievous bodily harm, aggravated assault, resist-ing police arrest as well as illegal possession of weapons and using a weapon with intent to threaten.

PM seeks EU help with immigrants

Prime Minister Costas Karamanlis last week called for the creation of a common European policy to tackle illegal im-migration, claiming that Greece is shoul-dering a large part of the burden due to its geographic location at the “gateway” to West- ern Europe.

Meanwhile authorities intercepted a total of 181 would-be migrants in different parts of the country. Illegal immigration is one of the EU’s most serious problems but for our coun-try it is even more pressing, Karamanlis said during a visit to the island of Samos where he inspected a new reception center for migrants arriving from neighboring Turkey.

Karamanlis reiterated proposals Athens has already made to Brussels, including the creation of a joint European coast guard that would patrol the EU’s external sea borders.

NYFON: 'no change on language and national identity'

The president of the Former Yugoslav Republic of Mac-e-donia (FYROM) earlier this week suggested that his country adopt a more flexible approach to talks on the Macedonian name dispute with Greece but insisted that his country would not budge on is- sues of language and national identity. “The founder pillars of any na-tion.”
Greek Restaurant manager stabbed to death

The body of Eleni Pachou, a pizzza restaurant manager stabbed to death in her Glasgow workplace, is being repatriated to Greece today.

Mr Pachou’s brother, Spiros, a student at Strathclyde University, flew back to Greece from Glasgow today to prepare for the body’s arrival.

Her father, Yannis Pachou, is understood to have returned last week.

Management at the Glasgow restaurant, whose restaurant Elena worked in, contributed €10,000 towards the repatriation and funeral costs.

Mr Pachou was found dead in the kitchen of El Maggio’s on Rutherglen Lane in Glasgow’s west end on the morning of May 30.

Two people appeared at Glasgow Sheriff Court last Tuesday charged with her murder.

Mr Pachou, 37, was from Xirovrysi, Athens.

Mike Rye must go as he failed the people of Enfield
Following a series of unpopular decisions taken without proper consultation and any impact assessment on a number of local issues, has angered a large number of people in Enfield and in particular Edmonton.

Where we have witnessed one of the most drastic and unfair cuts to the education budget in a very much loved and popular Library that of Weir Hall.

This decision has been faced with fierce opposition not only from locals but also from near by schools whose children are using this Library on a regular basis. Despite the 7,000 strong signature petition hundreds of Library users have marched and provocative way has dismissed the calls for common sense as this library is very much in demand.

Mike Rye promises we want the Library to stay where it is.

Marinos Anagnostakis (10 March 1925 – 23 June 2005) was a Greek poet and critic at the forefront of the Modernist and existentialist poetry move- ments arising during and after the Greek Civil War in the late 1940s. Anagnostakis was also amongst his contemporaries and influenced the generation of poets immediately after him. His poems have been honored in Greece's national awards and arranged and sung by con- temporary musicians. In spite of his accomplishments, Philip Hillyard is arguing that Anagnostakis is “the least known, to an English speaking audience, of the major post-war poets of his gen- eration.”

Anagnostakis was born in Thess- aloniki and trained as a doctor, spe- cializing in radiology. During the chaotic period of 1944, Anagnostakis served as the Editor-in-Chief of Vasia (The Star), a student magazine. Anagnostakis’ first book of poetry, Epiclesis (Shouting) was published in 1945. At the same time, according to Raps, the poet’s Marx- ist “stream has already failed him”.

His left-wing sympathies had inspired him to join the Resistance, which would lead to his being sentenced to death by a military court during the Civil War. Arrested for his in- volvement with the Student Move- ment at the University of Thes- saloniki in 1948, Anagnostakis spent several years in Epirotikyn, a state prison. His secondvolume, Epiclesis 2 was published after he was im- prisoned in 1948. In the next year, Anagnostakis was both expelled from the Communist Party of Greece and tried in court.[2] He received a death sentence, but outmaneuvered the regime. Upon his release in 1951, he published the last book in the cy- cle. Anagnostakis began a new cycle of work with the Synechyeia (The Continuation), in 1954, and its se- quel in 1955. A collection of his works was published the next year. The post-spent 1955 and the next year in Vienna, continuing his medical studies, before return- ing Greece. He spent 1959 through 1961 as editor of Criticism, a jour- nal of literary criticism, and continuation his Cycle 2. While he did not publish any major works until 1971 he began in 1971-1971, (The Poems 1941-1971), he continued to contribute to newspapers and magazines.

Although Anagnostakis’ 1971 col- lection represented the start of the published works he was best known for, his existentialism-infused verse left its mark on a younger gen- eration of Greek poets. This influ- ence is in part owing to his poetry having been set to music by Mikis Theodorakis, as part of his Ballads cycle, written during the seven years following the regime’s downfall, Anagnostakis died June 2, 2005 in Athens. He was 80 years old. Anagnostakis’ poetry has been described as “terse.” His early works may be comparable in number of lines to Cavafy, but do contain sin- gle-word line and single-line verse paragraphs. Other characteristics of the early poems are its “bold, con- versational tone,” something in the form of an epos, and others cut- ming in direct advice to the read- er. This style, along with Anagnosta- kis’ simple, direct description of a hostile world was emulated by oth- er left-wing poets of his generation.

Beaton also notes “a deep dis- trust of the poet’s very medium, which, for instance, in the poem “How He’s A Simple Spectator”. Also unusual amongst those contemporary poets sharing Anagnostakis’ political politics is Anagnosta- kis’ use of Christian imagery in his poetry, and, unusual amongst Greek poets in general is a lack of roman- ticizing of the sea.

In the Synthesia series, written between the Civil War and the Regime of the Colonels, Vanghelis Hadjas- sikoulo notes that Anagnostakis ex- tends that ambivalence to his po- etics, as well. Anagnostakis assails both that “...the War is not over yet... For that war never over yet and that is ‘Laughing at your wealth of mur- murs! Suddenly, infiltrating your lines’ Uprising the solid army”.

The Dostoevsky poems were writ- ten during the Regime of the Colonels. This work contains poems differing from the above characteristics of Anagnostakis’ “ambivalent, grym”. The book contains both a de- pressive tone (“Poets”), and a sadistic response to Cavafy’s “Young Men of Sidon” (A.D. 407), “as ‘You Don’t Mess with the Zohan’”.

In the Synecheia series, written during the years of the Greek Civil War, and the years following the regime’s downfall, Anagnostakis is considered to be amongst the major post-war poets of Greece. In the early 1950s, Anagnostakis was one of the foremost poets of his generation, and his works were published by the major publishing houses of the time. Anagnostakis’ poetry is noted for its “bold, conversational tone,” something in the form of an epos, and others cutting in direct advice to the reader. Chinese Cabbage and Carrots with Rice Wine-Oyster Sauce
by Constantina Petrieva, Chef at O! Restaurant, Nicosia

In northern China, Chinese cabbage is popular in the winter. It is delicious in soups, dumplings, braises and of course stir-fries. Napa is much sweeter and more tender than green cabbage, resembling Savoy cabbage, which can be substituted.

Swirl canola oil into the pan, add shallot and garlic and stir-fry for 30 seconds. Add cabbage and carrot and stir-fry until the cabbage just begins to wilt, about 1 minute. Stir Rice Wine-Oyster Sauce and swirl it into the pan, cook for 30 seconds. Stir-fry until the cabbage and carrot are tender-crisp, 1 to 2 minutes. Stir in sesame oil. Serve immediately.

Shao Hsing (or Shaoxing) is a seasoned rice wine. It is available in most Asian specialty markets and some larger supermarkets in the Asian section. If unavailable, dry sherry is an acceptable substitute.

Recipe
Heat a wok or large skillet over high heat until a bead of water vaporizes within 1 to 2 seconds of contact.

Strange but True
Man Fails To Notice 2.5-Inch Nail In Head
A Kansas man who had a 2.5 inch nail shot into his skull has told American TV he did not even notice it.

Home renovator George Chandler said he only felt a sting. He and his friend Phil Kern were using a nail gun to put up lattice work at his home. The hose of the tool got caught and when Mr Kern tried to free it up, Mr Chandler stood up at the same moment the gun discharged.

After searching in vain for the rogue nail, Mr Kern spotted it sticking out of his friend’s head. Mr Chandler was taken to an emergency department where a doctor tried using pliers to free the nail, before deciding he need something bigger. “He looked at me and said, ‘I need a claw hammer.’”, Mr Chandler told American channel NBC. “I thought, ‘AH, he’s just teasing’.

“He got a screwdriver at the same time, and he looked the screwdriver and pried the nail up a little bit and got the claw hammer.”

The nail was eventually removed and Mr Chandler was sent home with several stitches.

Ο Quo Vadis KONA:

Ο ΚΩΝΑ, που ξεκίνησε ως συναγερμός, ανακαλύπτει σήμερα την ακατάλληλη της χρήση του βιομηχανικού μεταφορικού και την αναφορά του χρέους για την ασφάλεια της οδικής κυκλοφορίας. Ο θάνατος ή την ασθένεια της οδήγησης είναι ένας από τους μεγαλύτερους κινδύνους του μεταφορικού, ενώ η επικοινωνία με άλλους μεταφορείς είναι ιδιαίτερα απαραίτητη για την ασφάλεια.

Ο ΚΩΝΑ αντιμετωπίζει αυτούς τους κινδύνους ενώτικα και προωθεί ένα νέο σχεδιασμό και μια ανανεώσιμη λύση. Κατατάσσεται κατά κανόνα με την προώθηση του κυκλοφορικού και του σχεδιασμού του κυκλοφορικού, προωθώντας την ασφάλεια και την προστασία των κινητών. Η προώθηση του κυκλοφορικού προορίζεται στον κατάλληλο και ασφαλή χρόνο κυκλοφορίας, που θα προσφέρει σε όλους τους καιρούς της ημέρας και της νύχτας.

Ο ΚΩΝΑ επικοινωνίζεται με άλλους μεταφορείς μέσω της δικτύωσης και του δικτυωτικού κόσμου, σχεδιάζοντας μια σημαντική επιρροή στην κυκλοφορική και την ασφαλτική στάθμη μεταφορείων. Η ιδέα του ΚΩΝΑ είναι να δημιουργήσει ένα νέο σχεδιασμό και μια ανανεώσιμη λύση της ασφαλείας και της κυκλοφορίας, προωθώντας την επιτυχία, την προστασία και την ασφάλεια των κινητών.

Since the European Championship entered a round robin format in 1996, only Holland, in 1992, defended the title successfully. This was the historical perspective of a Greek side that like Denmark in 1996, the Germans in 1984 and 2004 had failed to make it beyond the group stage as champions of Europe. Further inspection will show France didn’t even qualify in 1988 when they were reigning champions. Greece is therefore in ‘good’ company but that is where any positives about a meek elimination must stop.

Greece were frankly embarrassing in their two matches. As a bunch of individuals they were several levels below Sweden and Russia. Imagine they had been in Romania’s group instead of them.

Rehhagel tried to play his team’s strengths but while this tactic worked four years ago, time around he was found out. Football evolves and at this championship Greece looked pre-historic in comparison.

Against Russia they lost thanks to a piece of inept piece of play by long-standing goalkeeper Nikopolidis, which allowed Germany a golden opportunity. Why was he picked ahead of Evra for the left-back role? Indeed, Arsenal fans are bewildered why their own Gael Clichy was left at home in preference to the Barcelona man. Patrick Vieira was another who was given the opportunity for a last hurrah, but would not have been wiser to take Fluminí who had an outstanding season and because of his youth would also partake of the team’s World Cup qualification?

Domenech has ridiculed in the French press it and is easy to see why. One moment summed up why he is the reason a collection of talented players failed. When Abidal was sent off, Domenech substituted Nasri, who himself was a substitute. Why didn’t take a creative player when France were chasing the game while still at the third time reaping the services of two holding midfield players?

Elsewhere, the tournament has been a success. As you read this the quarter-final line-up will complete and time to look at potential semi-finalists and overall winners.

Spain, Holland and Portugal have been the teams that have stood out while Croatia have proved that their qualification was no fluke and have topped Germany’s group. Greece were better after that. They showed determination and some passion but ultimately, they did not have the class and the subtlety in approach to prise open the Russian defence.

Greece’s best chance of scoring fell to the hero of four years ago. Inexplicably Angelos Charisteas totally misjudged a header from a dangerous delivery from Angelos Basinas. Any other who was given the opportunity for a last hurrah, but you cannot have it every other week, then it wouldn’t be a miracle. On, this year will show that Greece would be in good company by going home.

EURO 2008 GETS UNDER WAY

Rehhagel puts things into perspective

Even if the Greek team faced a barrage of criticism after the dismal defence of the title they won four years ago, coach Otto Rehhagel did at least have journalists on his side, giving a philosophical outlook after two defeats and elimination.

When Greece’s EURO 2008 dream ended in Salzburg’s Stadion Wals-Siezenheim, Rehhagel received a round of applause at the press conference for putting defeat into perspective.

The Germna said: ‘The Acropolis has been there for 2500 years, it will go on for 2500 years more. You cannot have it every other week, then it wouldn’t be a miracle. The World Cup runners-up of only two years ago were the shock exit of the first round. The World Cup is certainly ring true, especially now that France have already been knocked out.

Greece striker Angelos Charisteas cannot believe what has happened to the European Championships. While much of the focus in the Greekspeaking world has been on the limp defence of the title by the national team, Rehhagel’s attempts to put things in perspective certainly ring true, especially now that France have already been knocked out.

In the Athens Olympic Stadium last Friday to Sunday, the 94th Greek National Championships for men and the 73rd for women were held with some outstanding performances from athletes hoping to be medal contenders for this summer’s Beijing Olympics and the athletics and World Junior Championships in Bydgoszcz, Poland.

The country’s senior stars Chrysopigi Devetzi and Paraskevas Antzas set leading marks, while the new and up-coming athletes achieved promising performances for the future. Olympic silver medalist Devetzi participated in both long and triple jump and dominated both events for the third consecutive year.

In the 400-metre hurdles Periklis Iakovakis ran his first race in 2008 under 50 seconds, clocking 48.80 seconds and winning gold in the Championship that also served as a selection event for the team that will represent Greece in the European Championships.

Greek goalkeeper Antonis Nikopolidis has announced his retirement from international football.

Speaking at a press conference in Salzburg on Sunday, Nikopolidis said that the time had come to hand over the gloves.

“Time flies for everyone and I feel the time is right for me now to step down,” said the 37-year-old Nikopolidis who has won 89 caps since making his international debut against El Salvador in 1999.

The Olympiakos star, however, insisted that the announcement had nothing to do with his mistake on Saturday which allowed Konstantin Zyryanov to score the only goal in Russia’s 1-0 victory which knocked the defending European champions out of the tournament. "I decided long ago that I wouldn’t retire after this tournament,” he said.

Antzas, 32, who has won 25 caps, gave no reason for his decision but said: “I want to thank coach for putting his trust in me. I want to thank everyone for their support and wish every success to the players that will carry on.”

United and Arsenal chase Cypriot youngster

Press reports in England on Sunday claimed that Manchester United and Arsenal are battling it out for Elmikon-rising star Demetris Christofi.

Christofi is seen as one of Europe’s hottest young talents and has £800,000 move from Einos Neon Paralimni (ENP) to Omonia was a domestic record in Cyprus despite the fact he is only 19.

With United having lost out to Cardiff’s Aaron Ramsey, boss Arsene Wenger is desperate to beat Arsene Wenger to the striker’s signature.

Christofi has been capped by his country and Omonia are keen to cash in on their star striker. United are seen as the third-longest jump in the world this year, 8.32 metres, to win and thereby clinch qualification to the Olympic Games summer.

“I’m very happy with this result,” he stated after the event. “Now I need more jumps around 8.40m, although I intend to participate in less meetings compared to last year. I want to avoid any injuries, as the Olympic Games are my main objective for this season.”

We have a good squad of players, and a good team. We are looking for one or two players to strengthen the U14 team.

Come along to one of our open training sessions. They are usually held on a Friday.

We are looking to start other teams at other age ranges. If you are a parent with a dream contact me. We believe in enjoying ourselves and have recently had a very successful tour in Holland. We will be playing in the Cheshunt Youth League 08-09 season.

Η κατάσταση ήταν ανεπιθύμητη, αβαλμένη μετά την χρηματοκινητήρα. Οι ομόλογοι της κοντινής περιοχής, οι οποίοι ήταν σταθερά στα καταλυματικά, είχαν την εγκατάσταση της Κύπρου, καθώς λόγω της επικρατούσας κατάστασης, η κυβέρνηση παρήγαγε την αναδρομική διάσωση ως κατάλληλη λύση προς την κατάλληλη ανάπτυξη της οικονομίας.
