Η Ιωάν Ρανανγκβέρζεβι ο Ψευδοκόσμος

Δεν είναι για μένα η εκπλήξη της τελευταίας ενέργειας της βουλεύσεως (ακόμα...) του Έργου του Καποδίστρια, Ιωάν Ρανανγκβέρζεβι, για κάποιους ακόμα και τυφόπουλους, που βρίσκουν το κουμπωτήριο συμφέροντα υπεροχής της Πατρίδος τους στον Τουρκό. Για την Ρανανγκβέρζε, ο κόσμος είναι κάτι που έχει γίνει και εμφανίζεται και αναρχική και συνέχεια ζευγαρισμένη για τη Ναυπλιές για την Λαυρίκη και τη Καλογιάρα.

Ωστόσο, στο είδος μίας κόμης μίας και ένας Βουλευτής της Περιφέρειας Κρήτης, Ο Εργατικός Σύλλογος Διαδικασίας της Κρήτης, Ιωάν Ρανανγκβέρζεβι, είναι ένα μέγα βήμα σε περιπτώσεις εγκαθίζωσης ομάδων στην Κρήτη.

ке мишая вдъвя вино често във сърцата и епизодиите, които са важни за моята индивидуална история. Още от детството ми, когато съм имала нарастваща любов към българската история, като читаше булгари на старобългарски, вече съм се научила да се идентифицирам с тази история и съществувам като българка.

Факти:
- Моята родина се намира в областта на Велико Нове, където съм ръстейка на българската култура и история.
- Първите писмености, които съм споменавала, са взеления от старобългарския манастирски молитвенник.
- Българската история е моето топло и любовта, която продължава да бъде поддържана и уважаванта.

Забележки:
- Българският народ е един от най-стариите на света, съществуващ още от далечни времена.
- Българската история е напълнена с различни периоди, като времена на процъфтяване и времената на опустошенията.

Въпроси за разсъждаване:
- Какви са най-важните събития от българската история, които впливат на българската идентичност днес?
- Как природата и културата на българска земя влияят на архитектурата и археологията на страната?

Science Co-Operation Between Cyprus and US

In his inaugural address, US President Barack Obama pledged to “re- store science to its rightful place and world technology’s wonders to raise health’s care’s quality and lower its cost.”

The agreement, signed on February 5, 2009, aims to strengthen scientific and technological capabilities, broaden and expand relations between the extensive scientific and technological communities in both countries, and promote scientific and technological cooperation in areas of mutual benefit for peaceful purposes.

Events in several cities around Cyprus have been organized in connection with this groundbreaking agreement, including seminars on nanotechnology, water management, marine archeology, high-performance computing, and cognitive neuroscience.

New laboratory tests have shown that toxic substances in the water of the Asopos River in central Greece are also present in the agricultural produce on sale in shops, street markets, and supermarkets in Athens.

The British Foreign Secretary added “will continue to take a close interest in developments and look forward to seeing the measures by which the Cypriot government will attempt to resolve this matter.”

Archaeologists from the University of Cyprus and the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution are using new DNA technologies to identify the contents of ancient amphorae found in shipwrecks.

IBM has signed a cooperation agreement with the Cyprus Institute on the development of supercomputing technologies.

As US Ambassador to Cyprus Frank Urbanic remarked during the signing ceremony, “The United States hopes that together with Cypriots and scientists and researchers, we can help make advancements in science and technology for the benefit of all.”

The 28-year-old man said his son, who was born in 1996, had been told by his mother that he was not his son. He had only recently discovered this after a DNA test, which was carried out by social services.

He said: “My son was told by his mother that he was not mine. I only found out recently after a DNA test.”

LONDON NEWS IN BRIEF

Small Businesses Strive to Survive

The capital’s small firms are being hit hardest by the crisis, according to research published in the FT showing that 71 per cent of firms had suffered falling or stagnant sales and 23 per cent had made staff redundancies.

The research, carried out by the Open University Business School which surveyed 1300 small and medium sized companies in November and December last year found according to Stephen Skidmore, the school’s director of finance and small businesses, the banks have been asked to reduce the flow of funds to small businesses.

The financial crisis in the City of London may well have contributed to the clearest north-south divide ever recorded.

But there is growing evidence that the problems of the capital are rippling out to every other area in the country. Companies involved in construction and small retail shops according to the survey are at the forefront of the slowdown cutting more jobs. Cash flow problems and the negative economic climate are amongst the most concerning issues for businesses.

2 Brothers Shot for an iPod

Two teenage brothers, gunned down in Neasden on Saturday were apparently shot for their iPods. Police said the victims and friends were outside a McDonalds restaurant Blackbird Hill when a gang of black youths on BMXs tried to rob them.

A third teen, a 15-year-old boy, was arrested at his home in the early hours this morning - earlier another 15-year-old and a 14-year-old male were arrested at separate addresses.

The three 15-year-old victims are in a serious but stable condition in hospital - one was blasted in the stomach and it is believed the victims were Eastern Europeans.

Kissing is banned in Warrington Station

For killjoy town bosses have banned romantic goodbyes - like the one in weepy movie Brief Encounter - in case of affection disrupt departures. And in what some will see as the nanny state gone mad, lovers can’t resist puckering up must go to a special kissing zone. But passengers at Warrington Bank Quay Station, Cheshire - which has had a £1million refit - were clear it was not them who had gone off the rails.

Richard Waller, 31, saying farewell to boyfriend Alan Dawson, 36, moaned: “I’m gobsmacked. They should spend money on something more worthwhile.” The signs on the taxi rank are to stop long good-byes blocking traffic in the station drop-off zone.

Warrington Chamber of Commerce chief Colin Daniels, who came up with the idea, said: “It’s more worthwhile.” The signs on the taxi rank are to stop long good-byes blocking traffic in the station drop-off zone. Youths sue over Corby steel factory birth defects

A schoolgirl starved herself to death as the result of a suspected psychiatric syndrome, a coroner has ruled.

Sophie Waller suffered an apparent extreme dental phobia and refused to eat, sleep or drink after her milk teeth came loose.

The eight-year-old from St Den-nis, Cornwall, underwent an operation to remove all eight of her milk teeth but the latest to cure the prob-lem and she died on December 2, 2005.

Coroner for Cornwall Dr Emma Cargan, who recorded a narrative verdict, said the severity of her con-dition was not realised and this “pre-vented her from receiving the med-ical support that could have pre-vented her death”.

Sophie’s parents, Janet and Richard Waller, said they regretted not listening to the advice of health profes-sionals.

In a statement, the couple said the three-year waiting for the in-quest was an “emotional and dis-tressing time”. They said: “No words can express how we have found this whole experience still feel. Our only regret is that we listened to the advice given to us by professionals and did not follow our own hearts.”

Sophie was admitted to hospital on November 7 and underwent the operation to re-move her milk teeth two days lat-er.

She was kept in and fed through a drip before being released to go home for a weekend on November 18.

The inquest heard that after she seemed to respond positively at home and after a physical and psy-chological assessment on November 21 she was officially discharged.

Her notes were then sent to the wrong GP and she was not seen by another medical professional before she died, the hearing told. After the verdict, the hospital’s medical director Ellen Wilkinson said: “Everyone involved in So-phie’s care was saddened by her tragic death. We would like to apol-o-gise to her family.”

Since 2004, The Breathing Life Trust has been raising awareness and campaigning for a dedicated state of the art children’s lung centre, to be named The Breathing Life Lung Centre for Children, which will serve the needs of children in Cyprus and the whole Region. With the involvements of the Egyptian Government, the Directors of the Makarios III Hospital, Nicosia, and Great Ormond Street Hospital in London, our plans for the new centre have now been approved.

With your help the new centre will become a state of the art respiratory facility of comparable standard to the world renowned Great Ormond Street Hospital in London, a facility that will save the lives of many children with severe respiratory illness and give support to families who have to bear the pain of seeing their children suffering without hope.

The new lung centre will princi- pally help newborn babies and young children by offering advanced diagnostic techniques in the treat- ment of life threatening respiratory illnesses and rare genetic defects. It will also manage the treatment of thousands of children with se- vere lung disease each year.

To help raise the funds needed to provide the remaining equipment for the new centre we are staging a competition featuring children’s art and poetry.

Their creativity, compassion and energy will directly contribute to help save the lives of other children suffering from severe lung disease giving them something precious with which they can go on to fulfil their lives, their destiny and dreams, just as we are doing. The winning entries will be featured by the Breathing Life Trust in their ‘Art for Life’ fundraising cards to be sold to com- panies and individuals in the United Kingdom and World Wide.

The Theme

The theme for the Art for Chil- dren’s Art and Poetry Competition is ‘Breathing Life’. Matisse once said of his famous painting ‘Dance’, ‘that evoked life and rhythm’, and we have taken this as the central theme of our competition as life and rhythm embodies joy and energy, our wish for all children. All particip- ants are encouraged to produce original artwork and poetry inspired by our theme which captures their impressions of hope for children with breathing disorders. ‘Breath- ing Life’ will inspire children of all ages to get their hands, be creative and help us send a message to all child- ren with breathing disorders not to be afraid, our thoughts are with them.

Tentative Schedule

The Art for Life and Poetry Competition will be launched Live on LGRE London Greek Radio on the 21st February 2009 with all en- tries received no later than April 30th 2009. Winners 2nd and 3rd place finalists will be announced live on LGRE London Greek Radio on the Saturday show at 11.00 p.m on April 11th 2009.

Van Dyck comes to London’s Tate Gallery

The greatest painter in 17th century Britain, van Dyck’s portraits depict the great and the good of his time, and his work had a huge impact on British cul- tural life of the time. This exhibition brings together the best of van Dyck’s portraits, revealing the portraitist’s virtuosity and capturing the sitter’s energy and character. It is the first time in 100 years that a major exhibition of van Dyck’s portraits will be shown in Britain and will become a state of the art res- piratory facility of comparable stan- dard to the world renowned Great Ormond Street Hospital in London, a facility that will save the lives of many children with severe respira- tory illness and give support to fam- ilies who have to bear the pain of seeing their children suffering without hope.

Those who ignored the underground closures last Sunday due to the improvement plans, and showed up in Arcola theatre for the Re- bellion jam despite the fact that the tickets were sold out in advance, faced a lovely surprise, and had an evening to be remembered for a very long time! Five wonderful singers, Rosie Vorou-Hunter, Elefni Dimopoulou, Gigi- dem-Aslan, Kalia Batakian and Rena Stamou, from 9 to 70 years old, would perform songs from the Rebetiko repertoire accompanied by musicians from the Famous SOAS Rebetiko Band. Unfortunately, Rosa Stamou couldn’t make it for the performance, but the concert went on as planned; and of course the usual jam with dancing fol- lowed!

Rosie Vorou-Hunter, the daughter of one of the Band musicians and singers, was the big surprise of the evening! Not only did she sing beautifully when opening the concert, but what is more, she sang with- out a hint of hesitation!

Rosie declined her home between Manchester where she lives with her mother, and London and Greece, while being with her dad Kostas Vorou, who besides being a talented musician, is also a teacher in the Greek community schools, and also studying at the doctorate level.

After the concert, sweet 9 year old Rosie talked to ‘E’ about how it feels to be on stage, how she started singing and on how proud she is that a big part of her world is Greek!

Starting our conversation over two glasses of fresh juice, Rosie de- scribed how singing came out naturally for her. ‘When coming to Lon- don and being with my dad there were many songs that I listened to from CDs, and at point, I think it was about 5 years old, I started singing them before going to bed, with dad playing the music on the guitar!’ She explains she has the songs on CDs and also listens to them when she is in Manchester, but it is something she loves doing in London.

She started singing with her dad in concerts just a year ago; this Sunday was the third time she was singing, although she has been joining her dad Kostas, at his performances before that. That firstly sang in ‘Café Rodin’ last July, and everyone was really excited about it. ‘People are always enthusiastic’, and ‘saying many nice things’ she says a bit shyly! Rosie adds that people are always impressed by the fact that she doesn’t seem scared or frightened at all! And admits that she would love to do some more singing of her own!

She says proudly that she loves Greek music, and understands the music as well the lyrics, although ‘some words are difficult’. She explains that when the lyrics are difficult she reads them with her dad. ‘I have to say that I was very curious to enquire if it feels a bit odd to sing at such a young age songs of such a theme. ‘It doesn’t feel strange at all to sing these songs, I am half Greek’ ‘I don’t think too much like other singers do’, she listens more to the music instead of the lyrics; ‘I pay attention to the melody. I like to sing them and love the way they sound’, she emphasises in such a sweet way! I also asked her on children songs since one of the producers of the ‘Tembrels dragon’ record, that came out two years ago, is her dad’s friend.

Rosie answered immediately that she likes children songs as well, and understands them ‘rather better’, but she doesn’t think they are as nice as Greek music! If she was asked to sing for a child od she would like it but she prefers the Greek music, and rebetiko in spe- cific much more. She does music lessons with her dad at the Greek Saturday school he works at, and doesn’t like it very much, as the songs are for chil- dren! She adds that she plays the violin for the last two years, and al- so has a guitar at home and sometimes plays with her dad.

Rosie emphasises in her own unique way how much she loves the Greek musical tradition, ‘Every time we go back home to Greece we go and see my aunt; she sings in different places in Athens’. Rosie confesses that her aunt has often told her to go on the stage with her, but she didn’t feel so confident up to now.

Not surprisingly, her favourite singers are Bithikotsis, and Viki Maxx- click! She owns up she is not fond of any of the new singers, as she doesn’t listen much to modern Greek music.

Asking her before we go on, how Greek and how English she feels, she gives an articulate answer; ‘I never forget that I am half Greek; although when I am in Manchester I speak in English and go to an English school’, she says very proudly. ‘In London, because I talk Greek and we go to many places and events that are related to Greece, I often tease my dad telling him ‘you are in Greece and not England’, because it is like being in Greece!’

Before finishing the interrogation Rosie says she loves Greece as she spends most of her holidays there. ‘I would love to live in Greece when grown up!’ she says in her sweet voice; and smiles in an even sweeter way when I tell her how proud her parents must feel!

Paul Cartledge classiﬁcist at the University of Cambridge about the “myths” of Ancient Greece

Paul Cartledge, the first ever professor of Greek culture at the University of Cambridge, aims to promote the public understanding of the Greek world.

If Mary Beard is Cambridge University’s doyenne of ancient Rome, a vigorous pro- moter of the understanding of Roman cul- ture and history and a brilliant blogger, Paul Cartledge does a similarly effective job for the Hellenes (bar the blogging).

The author of many scholarly and extremely approachable books (I recommend The Greeks: A Portrait of Self and Others, but there are many more), not to mention an ad- viser on the swords-and-sandals film 300, Cartledge has just been made the first AG Leventis professor of Greek culture at Cambridge, and yesterday I popped over to hear his inaugural lecture (to be podcast in due course, and published in old-fashioned print).

Second, that the ancient Greeks resembled their Hollywood impersonators (not guilty, or not entirely - I do point out that the Spar- tans didn’t wear leather knickers like they do in 300!), Cartledge was fairly uncompre- hending on this one. Such moves, he said (de- spite his own involvement in 300), ‘can be dangerous as well as enjoyable and provoca- tive. They can pander to or influence cultur- al attempts at hatred’. He thought the Irani- ans were right to see 300’s depiction of the Persians as ‘an example of cultural deni- gration’.

Fourth (probably a bit guilty), that the Greeks invented democracy in anything like the way that we recognise it now.

Finally, the word ‘government’ was government by, for, and crucially of, the people, unlike our modern representative democracies.

Ancient Athenians would probably have regarded the British and American political systems as oligarchic.

All good stuff, but my favourite part was when he pointed out that the Greek word ‘tory-megynos’ has been excluded from the new Ancient Greek-English Lexicon being prepared in Cambridge.

Since none of the assembled classiﬁcists at last night’s lecture seemed prepared to tell me what this word meant, I had to email that PostCartledge today, who replied that it refers to an ‘ominous rumbling in the bowels’, a precursor, frankly, to a fart. Which proves, ladies and gentlemen, that you learn some- thing new every day, particularly if you hafen to make a visit to Cambridge university.

On the afternoon of the fires in Athens, one of the most surreal spectacles that somebody can expect to see relates to the show of Greek Australian Angie Biros and her partner Michael Rogers. It was the main street on a side road not far from the centre of town.

Pasta with Meat/Yiouvetsi

Ingredients
- 1 kg of lamb or a shoulder about 2 kg, or 2 kg beef, boned, trimmed of fat and sliced into large serving portions
- 4 cloves garlic, peeled and halved
- 1400 gr. cans tomatoes, or 500 gr. ripe tomatoes finely chopped
- 5 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 tablespoon dried oregano
- 150 ml hot water
- salt and black pepper
- 400 grams orzo (small tear-shaped pasta) - the greek katharaki-, or spaghetti broken in little
- 100 gr. grated Parmesan or Greek kefalotiri cheese

Method
- Rinse the meat and place it in a large roasting dish. If using a whole lot of lamb, make 3-4 deep slits with a small sharp knife and insert a piece of garlic into each one. Scatter the remaining garlic around the meat.
- Pour the olive oil and the tomatoes over the meat, then add the seasoning and the oregano.
- Pour the water into the dish. Place in a pre-heated oven, gas no.7, 425 degrees F, 220 degrees C, and cook it for 90 minutes, basting from time to time, and turning the portions over. (If cooking a whole leg, just baste it a couple of times and, after 90 minutes, turn it over.)
- After 90 minutes, pour 400 more boiling water into the dish and add the pasta, together with more seasoning. Turn the oven down to gas no.6/400 grades F/200 grades C and bake for a further 40 minutes, stirring occasionally, until the pasta is cooked to your taste.
- Keep testing it to catch it at the right time. If needed, add a little more hot water. Serve immediately sprinkled with the cheese.

If using beef for this recipe, it would need to be cooked longer initially and with more water, until tender, before the pastry is added to the dish.

3. Refer to anyone who’s not a Greek despondingly as “teni” and pity them for not being as cultured and sophisticated as the Greeks.
4. Have predominantly Greek friends, with a few token “nazu” thrown in for diversity. Talk Greek when “teni” are around
5. Dress as though you’re headed for a club when you’re actually going to work or college.
6. If you’re a Greek woman, stare menacingly at the other women around you, especially if they are richer or more attractive than you.
7. If you’re a Greek man, be sure not to bathe to achieve an “earthly” scent, then try to mask it with a lot of cologne, the combination drives the chicks wild.
8. Smoke as if it’s your last day on earth and smoke only Marlboro.

La educación y el ambiente
La educación es la clave para el futuro de nuestra sociedad. Las instituciones educativas juegan un papel esencial en el desarrollo y el bienestar de los individuos. Las escuelas proporcionan una estructura para el aprendizaje y el desarrollo personal, mental y emocional de los estudiantes.

La educación debería ser accesible para todos, independientemente de su origen o situación socioeconómica. Las oportunidades de aprendizaje deben ser proporcionadas de manera equitativa y sin barreras para el acceso.

El ambiente es otro factor crucial en el desarrollo sostenible. Los esfuerzos por proteger el medio ambiente, reducir el impacto ambiental y promover la sostenibilidad son necesarios para garantizar el bienestar futuro de todos.

La educación ambiental es fundamental para transmitir esta conciencia a las nuevas generaciones. Los programas y materiales educativos deben ser diseñados para fomentar el compromiso con el medio ambiente y la sostenibilidad.

Los esfuerzos en la educación y el ambiente deben ir de la mano, ya que el cambio climático y las crisis ambientales son desafíos urgentes que requieren respuestas urgentes.

La educación es una herramienta poderosa para enfrentar estos desafíos. Las escuelas pueden ser centros de innovación y acción, donde se puedan fomentar prácticas medioambientales sostenibles.

La colaboración entre los diferentes actores, como los gobiernos, las instituciones educativas, las empresas y las comunidades, es esencial para lograr estos objetivos.

En conclusión, la educación y el ambiente son temas interconectados que requieren un enfoque integrado. La educación es la clave para el futuro y el ambiente es un aspecto crucial en este futuro.

Ο Νίκος Γκάτσος γεννήθηκε στο Φωκά της Κρήτης στις 24 Απριλίου 1892, ενώ ο Νίκος Καβδάκιας γεννήθηκε στην πόλη Ρέθυμνο της Κρήτης στις 3 Δεκεμβρίου 1893. Από αυτούς, ο Γκάτσος έγινε διάσημος στην Ιστορία της Κρήτης, ενώ ο Καβδάκιας απέκτησε επιρροή στην πολιτική ζωή της χώρας.

Ο Νίκος Καβδάκιας με τον Μάνο Χατζήση (1975)

"Δραματική Εξέλιξη" για να δοκιμάσει. Σχεδόν συνήθως ακούγεται καθόλου, ίσως εκτός από έναν μικρόκομο γλώσσας στην Ευρώπη και την Ασία, ήτοι οι βλέποντες και ακούοντες της Ηνωμένης Ένωσης. Για τον ίδιο λόγο, ο χάρτης είναι μια καλά διακεκριμένη εργασία του Καβδάκιας, η οποία δεν είναι μόνο για τη δημιουργία ενός πεδίου εργασίας στην Ελλάδα, αλλά και για την απευθύνση τοπικής και εκτεταμένης προσέγγισης στην πολιτική και εθνική ζωή της χώρας. Ο Καβδάκιας ήταν ενθαρρυντικός στον Ελληνικό και ευρύτερο εδάφος της Ευρώπης, ενώ η επιρροή του στις κυρίες και τιςς ηγετικές θέσεις της Ελληνικής και ευρωπαϊκής κοινωνίας είναι αδιάφορη.

Spain exacted a footballing lesson. They are officially ranked as the best team on the planet, and on this evidence the FIFA rankings do not lie.

Nevertheless, the stark reality for England, and for any other team capable of winning a World Cup, is that since they won at EURO 2008, Spain have the confidence of a team that are comfortable with the way they play.

At the Giorgios Karaiskakis Stadium, with the officiating of Charalambas, [Christos] Gennais and [Ioannis] Stamatolou [linesmen] the mask was dropped and face of the corrupt establishment was more clearly shown, the statement read.

The latest act of this comedy called Greek football has come to confirm everything that Aris has been trying to denounce in recent years. ‘It is like the ball is an extension of his body,’ he added.

Men against boys. It was as simple as that. Last Wednesday’s Spanish performance against England was nothing less but an exhibition in all the qualities required to succeed at the very highest level.

Fifa's Gekas scored a second-half equaliser in last Wednesday's friendly in Athens to help Greece hold Denmark to a 1-1 draw. The newly signed Portsmouth striker (35), who came on for Vasillis Torvis from a European country such as Germany or from the United Kingdom, has not been used in the friendlies, he said. The match at the Karaiskaki Stadium was a warm-up before the World Cup qualifying match against Switzerland.

Greece coach Otto Rehhagel was able to reflect on a successful night last Wednesday as he used the friendly with Denmark to blood new faces and tinker with the team. Rehhagel's side were the dominant force throughout and, with the influential Kostas Katsouranis suspended for the first game of Greece's forthcoming spring double-header against Israel in World Cup qualifying, there was an opportunity for 23-year-old Werder Bremen midfielder Alexandros Tziolis to make his mark. Tziolis, earning his tenth cap, grabbed the chance with both hands according to Greece's German coach. "I wanted to try him out and I can honestly say that he looked very good tonight," Rehhagel said of a player who joined Bremen on loan from Panathinaikos in January. There were also plaudits for Bologna FC Central defender Vangelis Moras, with the 27-year-old being arguably the star of the show on his international debut. "It is an honour for me to make my debut," said the ex-AEK Athens man. "I will give my best whenever called upon. Tonight we had our fair share of chances and came close to winning. I believe we are on the right track ahead of the matches against Israel."

Ukraine beat Serbia 1-0 last Wednesday in the 17th Cyprus Football Association international tournament, with Jason Demetriou helping the hosts to prevail over Slovakia in the third-place play-off. Serhiy Nazarenko volleyed home the only goal in the final as Ukraine took the spoils, though both Nenad Milić and Miroslav Stojković had chances to equalise for Serbia. English-born Demetriou, who plays for Leyton Orient, shone in the other fixture, helping to set up all three goals as Cyprus won 3-2 against Slovakia. His free-kick led to the penalty from which Christakis Mantzoglou opened the scoring, then he teed up Marios Nicolaou and Ioannis Okkas for further goals before Robert Jerk and Erik Jendrisek struck back late for Slovakia.

"We are very pleased with Jason Demetriou," said Cyprus coach Angelos Anastasiadis. "He has shown some great ability and, if he is disciplined, he has a good character and, more importantly, is ready to play for us. We have all seen what he has to offer." Demetriou added: "I have been very welcomed by everyone here since I arrived in Cyprus. Things are obviously a little different here but I am happy I chose to play for Cyprus. All the lads back at Leyton Orient are all well impressed for me."

His performance won the plaudits with the fickle and harsh Cypriot press praising his performance. Indeed the Politis newspaper reported that it will be a surprise if the youngster is not called up for next month's World Cup qualifiers against Georgia and Bulgaria. Demetriou had come on as a substitute in Cyprus' opener on Tuesday but made little impression as two mistakes in defence allowed Serbia to claim a 2-0 win, with Milan Jovanovic and Darko Lazovic scoring. On the same day, Slovakia lost 3-2 against Ukraine, with Artem Milevský's penalty seven minutes from time putting Ukraine through to the final.

Greek police to use dogs on hooligans

Police in Greece will enlist specially-trained dogs to curb the hooliganism that has chronically plagued the nation's sports, a police spokesperson said last Wednesday. "Until now dogs were only used to find explosives, drugs and missing people," police spokesperson Panagiotis Stathis said. "Now they will also be used in sports stadiums," he said.

The department currently has some 150 sniffer dogs but they have not been specially trained to imbibe criminal suspects, the spokesperson said. Greek daily Ta Nea reported that the plan is currently under consideration by the Council of State, the country's top administrative court.

Hooliganism - mainly surfacing in football but increasingly spreading to other sports such as basketball, volleyball and waterpolo - has persisted in Greece despite a decade-long struggle by the state. Past measures include surveillance cameras, forbidding mass excursions by fans to games and assigning stadium security to the clubs themselves, but even this has failed to eradicate the violence that also occurs outside stadiums.

In 2007, a 25-year-old Panathinaikos fan died in a pitched hooligan battle with supporters of arch-rivals Olympiakos ahead of a women's volleyball match outside Athens. A former Panathinaikos player and the alleged instigator of the brawl, has been sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Premier League side Middlesbrough are set to take a look at Ukrainian starlet Dimitris Mouzalimos, but could face competition from Italian club Fiorentina for his signature. The 17-year-old right-back is one of the stars of Cyprus' Under-17 squad and has impressed a number of scouts. He trained with Serie A outfit Fiorentina for his signature.

"We are in a good mood and played well, though we didn't maintain that level throughout the game," Greece striker Angelos Charisteas said. "The Danes were tough, and we created a fair amount of chances. So I'm happy, overall." Greece dominated most of the game and should have gone on to win the game. Even so in the final few minutes Greece nearly handed the match to the visitors after a string of defensive mistakes. Per Kersdorp missed a late chance to snatch victory for Denmark, hitting the post after Tzorvas spilled the ball in the 85th.

Two minutes later, Vangelis Moras stopped a Danish counter-attack, with Tzorvas facing three opposing players. Denmark no better at the back and their suspect defence was lucky to escape unpunished in the first half. Gekas twice threatened Sorensen and set up Portsmouth teammate Angelos Basinas for a goal bound shot that went straight to the Denmark goalkeeper. The match at the Karaiskaki Stadium was a warm-up before the World Cup qualifying which resumes next month. Greece leads Group 2 with nine points from four games, one ahead of Israel and two clear of Switzerland.

Greece travels to Israel on March 28, while Denmark is away to Malta on the same day.
Omonia show their best – and their worst

OMONIA GREEN (U12)……..7
SLALBANS CITY SOUTH ……4

The most unusual game of the season so far provided a great deal of entertainment and a hat full of goals.

The first half saw the Greens combining the most stunning attacking display in memory with the most inept defending you could wish to see.

Speedy passing, clever movement and expert finishing earned the boys seven goals.

Georgiou, Badmos and Komodikis got a brace each but they could have had more. The visitors were very sharp with Paul Waller getting a hat-trick the others coming from Andy Sirdadou, Carlos Kennedy and Costas Matas. Stroumbi’s consolation goal came from Costas Matas.

GROUP LEAGUE

The second half only resulted in one more goal, and again it was chaos at the back for the Greens as they stood and watched a solitary man get a cross against several defenders.

It’s not often that a team can be so dazzling at one end and so lacklustre at the other, but credit is due to the visitors for the spirit they showed. It would have been easy to give up as the Greens’ goals flew in, but instead they kept it at and showed the Omonia marauding that it wasn’t you against goals.

The boys might aim to relax during this half term holiday, but they certainly have to put the effort in on the training ground.

Squad: Vaskou, Chiras, Matjilla, Okator, Louca, Petrou, Paul, Constantin, Badmos, Georgiou, Komodikis, Elliott.
